Footsteps is about your family's beliefs, being kind, and telling the truth. You'll share traditions you love, do something nice for someone, and think about why honesty matters. It's a chance to learn more about what makes your family special.

Requirements

Every official requirement, in plain language. Check the official wording when you sign off (scouting.org/cub-scout-adventures/footsteps/). Tips and examples are ideas, not extra requirements.

- ☐ 1 With a parent or legal guardian, discuss the faith traditions of your family; name three holidays or celebrations from them and make a craft or artwork about your favorite

Tip: Ask a grown-up about holidays your family celebrates, then draw or paint your favorite one.

Example: You might draw your family lighting candles, sharing a big meal, or decorating your home. Add a sentence about why that day is your favorite.

- ☐ 2 Go with your family to a religious service or other gathering where your family shows reverence

Tip: Go with your family to a service or gathering, and notice what people do to show reverence.

Example: Go with your family to a service or gathering that shows how you express reverence. Afterward, share one thing you noticed, like the music, a quiet moment, or the words people said.

☐ 3 Carry out an act of kindness

Tip: Help a sibling, write a kind note, or share a toy. Talk about how it made you feel.

Example: An act of kindness could be helping a younger kid tie their shoes, making a card for a grandparent or neighbor, or doing a chore for someone without being asked.

☐ 4 Read or listen to Aesop's fable "The Boy Who Cried Wolf" and discuss with your den or family why telling the truth matters

Tip: After the story, talk about what happened when the boy lied and why people stopped believing him.

Example: After the story, talk it over: Why did the villagers stop coming? Has anyone ever not believed you? What could the boy have done instead?
